

BLACK HISTORY MOMENT

A.J. English

A.J. English was born on July 11, 1967. He played basketball while at Howard High School from 1983–1986. English received two first-team All-State honors, was a leader on the Howard High School 1985 state championship team and distinguished himself as Howard High School's all-time leading scorer. English attended Virginia Union University from 1986 to 1990, averaging 33.4 points per game his senior year.

He was NCAA 1990 Division II "National Player of the Year," and was the nation's leading scorer in 1990. English was designated two-time CIAA Slam Dunk Champion. He played for the Washington Bullets from 1990 to 1992 and played for the Portland Trailblazers during his NBA career.

In 1999–2000, English played in the International Basketball League which included Italy, France, Spain, Turkey, Greece, and Poland. (DE Sports)

#BlackHistoryMonth

